SUMMARY

A military training area is located on the northern outskirts of Ulyanovsk, approximately 8 kilometers (km) northwest of the Ulyanovsk Railroad Bridge over the Volga River (Figure 1). It extends northward in an arc for approximately 15 km. The Ulyanovsk SAM Support Facility is on the western edge of the training area.

The installation occupies approximately 14 square miles and has the following training facilities: tank/assault gun firing range, flat-trajectory range, 2 driver-training courses, a probable infantry or combined arms training area, and an open and protected equipment storage area. Range support includes: 6 possible barracks, 1 probable messhall, 13 possible storage, and 16 miscellaneous support buildings (Figure 2).

KEYHOLE missions of fair quality photography from covered the area. Winter training activity appeared to be limited to the tank/assault-gun range and the southern driver-training area.
